CRESWICK.

(From our own Correspondent.)

14th April.

On Monday evening the shareholders of the Clark's Flat Company, on the invitation of Mr Anthony of the American Hotel, met to celebrate the commencement of working their grant, which they do under very favorable circumstances, and seem likely to be one of the most prosperous companies on Creswick. At eight o'clock about thirty-six sat down to a very excellent dinner, got up in that first-rate style for which Anthony's is noted, and to which ample justice was done; the cloth being removed and glasses filled.

The Chairman, Mr James Barclay, gave "The Clark's Flat Co-operative Gold Mining Company and the prosperity of Creswick Creek." Drank with three times three.

Mr Deagan, one of the managers, responded. He was one of the first who got up the company, and its prospects afforded him the greatest gratification, from the unanimity and harmony which existed amongst all the members, men from nearly every nation in Europe, and Americas; all were working men, able and willing to take their share of work. This was truly a co-operative company, which if carried on as at present, and he had no reason to expect otherwise, would by its success be an example for the formation of similar companies on Creswick, where there was plenty of room for them, and also on other goldfields. He hoped that each member would realize an independence from the work in which they were now engaged. (Song by Mr G. Russell, junior.)

The Chairman next gave "The present Government," as the hopeful promoters of the true interests of the colony.

Mr George Russell, in reply, said, he was well acquainted with one member of the present Government, Mr Gavan Duffy. His opponents admitted that his talents were equal to the position he held in the Government, but he held him in far greater estimation for his political integrity, in which he had the highest confidence, and that he would always be found supporting and advocating the rights of the people. He was not acquainted with Mr O'Shanassy, except through the columns of the newspapers. From these, he considered Mr O'Shanassy deserved and would have the support of the mass of the people. He would, however, support him and his Government only so long as it was just to all parties, and not to a few. (Song by Mr Crawford.)

The next toast, "The mining interests of Victoria," was briefly spoken to by Mr Wm. Russell. (Song by Mr D. Mitchell.)

"The Managers and Trustees of the Company" were severally replied to by Messrs pany" were severally replied to by Messrs P. Campbell and Wm. Taylor. (Song by Mr George Russell and Mr G. Lewis.)

The Chairman next gave, "The Engineers, &c., of the Company."

Mr Forbes regretted that circumstances had prevented the furnishers, of whom he was one, having their engine on the ground. He had a telegraphic message that day from Melbourne to say that the last portion was shipped for Geelong. When on the ground, a few days, he hoped, would be sufficient to get it in working order. No delay that could be avoided would, however, occur. And he had every confidence in the success of the company, as he had never seen a finer body of men together, or that worked more agreeably with one another. The great quantity of labor done for the time was a proof. (Song by Mr W. Russell.)

"The Press" was briefly acknowledged by Mr J. Boycroft.

The Chairman next gave "Our Host and Hostess." Drank with three times three.

Mr Anthony thanked the chairman and company for the kind manner in which they had drunk his and Mrs Anthony's health. He had always been well supported by the miners at Creswick, and considered that their prosperity and his own were identical. (Italian song, by Messrs Antonio Pevana, C. Wilson, and another gentleman.)

The last toast on the list, "The Ladies of Creswick," was drunk with all honor, and humorously responded to by Mr George Russell. (Song by Mr Francis Morley.)

After an evening spent in uninterrupted pleasure and conviviality, without excess on the part of any, the company broke up about two, with the hope of soon meeting again, as it is their intention, on the first dividend being made, to give a ball, &c., to the ladies of Creswick.

The funeral of Mr John Morris, on Tuesday last, was numerously attended. In addition to the public in general, there were 104 members of the Prince of Wales Lodge who followed their departed brother to the grave. The Rev G. Pollard read the beautiful service of the Church of England, and the Prov Grand Master, Brother W. L. Jones, delivered an appropriate address. At the request of the deceased, Mrs Morris joined the procession. We understand that Mrs Anthony, of the American Hotel, is willing to receive subscriptions for the widow and children.

13th May 1862

We regret to announce the death of Mr John Morris, builder, Albert-street, who after several months' suffering, died on Sunday evening last. Mr Morris, attracted by the once favorable reports, went to New Zealand, to try his luck at the gold-fields, but he was prostrated by sickness, and returned to Creswick to breathe his last. The deceased, who leaves a wife and family, was an active member and N.G. of the Loyal Prince of Wales Lodge. The officers and brethren, and a great number of our townspeople will follow his remains to their last resting-place this day. (This is the first death of a Creswick tradesman which has occurred for the last three and a half years.)

John Morris was a member of the Armagh Quartz Mining Company with my Great Grandfather

15th May 1863

An inquest was held at Anthony's American Hotel, on Wednesday, by Mr W B Lees, the District Coroner, on the body of a child which died on the 12th instant. Margaret Cullen sworn - The deceased is my daughter. She is twelve months and two days old, and was born on Creswick. Am unmarried. The father of deceased is Edward Cox. Have not seen him for the last year. Never received any money from him on account of deceased. Do not know here he is now. Deceased was a healthy child; when born she always appeared to be in pain. She took ill about six weeks ago, and from that time has been gradually sinking. Dr Roche saw deceased when she was attacked with vomiting; he prescribed for her and has seen her since frequently. I took deceased from my breast when she was between seven and eight months old. Mr Anderson told me I should get Dr Steel to see deceased; he saw her with Dr Roche last week. She had some medicine about six weeks ago, but none since. She died last night at 11 o'clock. She gradually sank. I used to give arrowroot, chicken broth, and some spirits. I was ordered to give the spirits by the doctor. Am a dressmaker. Have always carefully attended the deceased. Dr Roche brought down Dr Steel to see deceased last week. Dr Roche told me last week to continue giving deceased a little brandy, and that he would not give her medicine. He told me about a week ago that there were no hopes of recovery of deceased. Isabella Anderson, a neighbour, and Dr Roche, who made the post mortem examination, gave evidence. The jury returned the following verdict:- "The deceased, Mary Margaret Cox Cullin, died at Creswick on the 12th day of May from debility."

(From our own Correspondent.)

27th December.

A MAN FOUND DROWNED.—An inquest was held yesterday by the Coroner, W. B. Lees, Esq., on the body of a man, name unknown, which was found on Wednesday in the Glen Donald Creek, not far from the Hit or Miss Hotel. The deceased appeared to be about 30 years old, with rather a dark complexion, and was respectably dressed. Dr Roche, who examined the body, said he believed the man to have been drowned, and the jury returned a verdict accordingly.

ACCIDENT.—During the races yesterday at Bullarook, one of the riders was thrown and severely injured, the collar bone being broken and the ligaments ruptured. Dr Roche was promptly in attendance, and set the collar bone.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.—The sports yesterday, at the American Hotel, under the able management of Mr E. F. Morris, gave every satisfaction. There were foot races of every description, commencing with a wheelbarrow race, and ending with the best event of the day, a 200 yards spin, for which there were eight entries. The race was won in first rate style by Mr Robt. Wilson. There was a dramatic entertainment at Rosekilly's in the evening, which was very well attended. At the American Hotel there was a concert, in which Mr E. F. Morris and Miss Annie Hall appeared. Mr Morris sustained his old reputation, both as a comic and sentimental singer. His song on the fate of Burke and his companions was given with great pathos, and received deserved applause. Miss Hall fully sustained the opinion formed of her at rehearsal. She possesses a voice of very great compass and flexibility; and her execution of some most difficult songs stamps her as one of the best singers that has ever appeared in this district. The Concert Hall room was crowded, and the audience enthusiastic. There will be another concert given on Saturday night at the American by the same performers.

A DISORDERLY HOUSE.—At the police office this morning, Mr Meyer, of the White Swan Hotel, Melbourne road, was charged by Sergeant Archibald with allowing prostitutes to assemble in his house. The case was dismissed by the chairman, who at the same time cautioned Mr Meyers that if any complaint was made by the public against the house, the license would be cancelled.

A SERIOUS AFFAIR.—A fracas occurred this morning between two medical gentlemen, in which one endeavored to prove his knowledge of anatomy by trying to gouge out the other's eye. A police case will be the consequence.

CRICKET.—The match played here yesterday, between the Oddfellows and the Creswick Club, was won by the reputation of the former.

THE RACES.—The winners of the various of the former.

THE RACES.—The winners of the various races at Bullarook were—the purse, Mr Hay; the whip and spurs, Mr M'Cormack, and the trotting match, Mr Robt. Orr.
